

WAXMAN CERAMICS

EST. 1981

A Legacy Set in Stone

There is something enduring about tiles. Historically they were shaped by hand, forged by fire, and designed to last for generations.

FOUNDERS - ALBERT, RICHARD & SAM WAXMAN

The story of Waxman Ceramics begins in the same way.

Deep-rooted in family values and built on decades of hands on experience within the ceramics industry, our journey started not with trends or showrooms, but instead with hard work, nurtured relationships and a deep respect for craftsmanship.

From modest beginnings specialising in mosaics, the Waxman name became synonymous with reliability, integrity and quality. Long before ceramics became an interior design statement, we already understood their importance in homes, in public spaces, and in the everyday architecture of Britain.

What began as a practical business evolved into a passionate pursuit of excellence in surface design. Over the decades, the Waxman business has expanded, but our philosophy has remained the same:

Supply exceptional products, build lasting relationships & stand behind every tile.

Anchored in Tradition

For over 35 years, Waxman has built a strong and trusted partnership with Winckelmans, proudly bringing their heritage and craftsmanship to projects across the UK.

Winckelmans is a renowned French manufacturer of high-quality, unglazed porcelain stoneware tiles, operating since 1894 near Lille. Specialising in traditional Victorian and mosaic styles, this family-owned company is known for its durable, through-body colour tiles, ideal for both historic restoration and contemporary spaces. Now led by the fifth generation, it offers an extensive range of customisable patterns worldwide.

What does Slip Rating mean?

Slip rating, often referred to as slip resistance or slip coefficient, is a measure of the level of traction or grip that a surface provides, particularly in flooring materials. It is crucial to assess slip resistance in areas where people walk to prevent accidents, especially in spaces that may be prone to wet conditions, such as bathrooms, kitchens, swimming pool areas or outdoor walkways.

Rectified Tiles

Rectified tiles are ceramic or porcelain tiles that have been precisely cut and ground to ensure that all sides are exactly the same length and all angles are exactly 90 degrees. This process results in tiles with straight edges and sharp corners. The term "rectified" is used because the tiles are rectified to achieve this uniformity.

Rectified tiles are often used in modern and contemporary designs where a clean and seamless look is desired. The precise edges allow for narrow grout lines, which can contribute to a more streamlined appearance. Additionally, the uniform size and shape of rectified tiles make them easier to install with consistency.
